U of M program makes degrees avail to CF members, spouses

From DND/CF WINNIPEG

The University of Manitoba program for members of the Canadian Forces and their spouses is rated as a success story. With the May, 1986, convocation, more than 230 participants will have completed baccalaureate degrees, with seven going on to graduate studies completing masters degrees and one candidate earning a doctorate.

Graduate degrees all have been earned through on-campus study by students stationed in Winnipeg.

During the 12-year history of the program, about 3,500 members of the military community have undertaken studies. Approximately 20 per cent of those have been spouses of service members. During 1985-86, some 900 participants actively were pursuing studies.

The Canadian Forces University Program, first introduced in September, 1974, is a stepping stone for entry to the University Training Plans for officers and men (UTPO and UTPM). Each year, 25 to 40 program participants are selected for these plans. Estimates indicate that close to 200 candidates have been selected for full-time university attendance, while many others have been chosen for commissioning from the ranks.

Militia announces summer Jobs for students

WINNIPEG — Headquarters Manitoba Militia District has announced it will increase summer employment for young Manitobans to 250 from 60 positions last year.

The expanded Summer Youth Employment Program, known this year as Manitoba Army Reserve Summer Training Plan, will run in conjunction with the SYEP of past years.

Young Manitobans enrolling in the program this year will work five-day weeks between July 3 and August 13 with a possible extension to August 25 for selected individuals who have the time for additional training at the Canadian Forces Training Centre in Dundurn, Saskatchewan.

Individuals who enrol will earn $1,300 between July 3 and August 13, with additional pay for service in Dundurn.

The Summer Training Plan will involve a course in general military knowledge involving customs and tradition of the Canadian Forces, drill, weapons training, first aid and field craft involving outdoor survival skills, fitness training and practice of teamwork.

Program participants also will learn map and compass reading for cross-country navigation by day or night.

Anyone who has reached their 17th birthday before July 1, is under the age of 35 and is attending high school, community college, technical institute, university or other educational institution, may enrol by contacting Militia Headquarters at Minto Armoury, 969 St. Matthews Avenue, telephone 775-4113 or 775-4093. Deadline for enrolment is June 15, to allow time for medical examinations prior to program commencement.

Feds move to beef up Air Search and Rescure

OTTAWA — Defence Minister Erik Nielsen and Transport Minister Don Mazankowski have signed a memorandum of understanding that officially implements civil aviation support to the national search-and-rescue system.

Objective of the agreement with the Civil Air Search and Rescue Association (CASARA) is to preserve life and property by promoting aviation safety education and by securing civilian air search support services to augment search and rescue units of the Canadian Forces.

Establishment of CASARA is a major step in the revitalized government program to harness the talent, energy and resources of many to provide the national search and rescue system with an additional capability. When fully operational, it is anticipated that CASARA will provide 1,500 aircraft and 6,000 motivated and safety-conscious search and rescue volunteers.

The inaugural meeting of the national chapter of CASARA was opened April 29, 1986 in Ottawa by Major-General Larry Ashley, Chairman of the Interdepartmental Committee on Search and Rescue, and Mr. Claude

LaFrance, Transport Canada's Assistant Deputy Minister of Aviation.

Representatives of the 10 provinces and two territories discussed the relationship between the civil volunteer organizations and their federal sponsors. The first day's session ended with the election of a board of directors and a national executive headed by Robert Goldie, air chief for the Provincial Emergency Program in British Columbia.

Under the terms of a memorandum, CASARA agrees to promote participation in search-and-rescue training programs offered by the Department of National Defence, to promote participation in aviation safety education programs offered by the Ministry of Transport, and to encourage a search-and-rescue support services capability and participation by civilian members and member organizations.

Formation of the Civil Air Search and Rescue Association is an important step towards co-ordinating all available search-and-rescue capable air resources to improve Canada's national search and rescue system. Availability of these aircraft and trained crews will greatly assist in the conduct of search operations.

Why Voxair?

Voxair's first editorial — first edition — back on May 30, 1985 EDITORIAL

THERE HAS BEEN considerable optimism around the various units regarding the new R.C.A.F. Winnipeg magazine. It is therefore with great pleasure that we present to you the first issue of "VOXAIR."

One question that is predominant in all our minds is "Why VOXAIR?" Breaking the word down we have V-O-X, the latin word meaning voice, and A-I-R from Royal Canadian Air Force. Combining the two we arrived at our slogan "Voice of the Air Force."

To some this may seem like a very broad statement. However, when one realizes that we have from Air Cadets to Air Officers in our 20-odd units, one begins to see that every part of the air force must be represented here — and so it is.

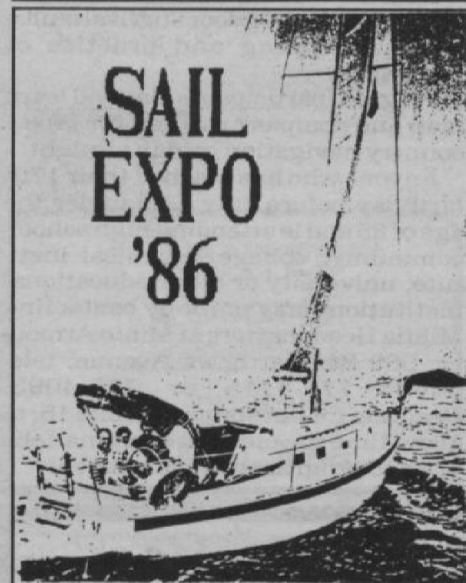

It can be seen that with such a wide variation in the function of our units, that it is exceedingly difficult to understand fully how we all fit into the R.C.A.F. It is the intention of VOXAIR to clarify this situation and present a picture that we hope will unite the units in a common bond of understanding. As you scan our editorial content you will note that we have 11 unit editors who are responsible for gathering the material necessary to make this bond lasting.

In order that this publication may reach as many as possible it is to be published tri-weekly to coincide with the graduating course of the Air Navigation School.

We wish to take this opportunity to thank all those who submitted entries in our recent contest to name the magazine. Well over two hundred entries were received and the committee experienced considerable difficulty in arriving at the most suitable name. At this time we would like to tip our hats to the originator of VOXAIR — Flying Officer Callin. Well done!

As this, our first issue reaches you, we invite you to let us know just what you think of it. Remember — this is your magazine, so give us your criticisms verbally or written. We, too, want a good magazine!

The program came about following the approval of a proposal initiated by the University of Manitoba. The original three-year agreement between the university and DND since has been renewed three times for three-year periods. A fourth renewal extending it beyond September 1, 1986, currently is being negotiated.

Credits granted military training

The U of M program is one-of-a-kind in Canada because of the advantages it offers. Students can be granted up to a maximum of 30 hours of credit, equivalent to one year of study toward Bachelor of Arts (general) degree, in recognition of military training and service. A second advantage of the program, also available to spouses, is a provision that allows a reduction — on an individual student basis — of the normal residence requirement for graduation when commitments to the service prevent a student from meeting this requirement. This means a student does not have to attend on-campus classes to meet the residence requirements, but can do so through correspondence study.

As well, once a candidate becomes a University of Manitoba regular student, permission to attend on-campus or correspondence classes at another university can be requested. Credit in this case is added to the student's Manitoba record after completion of the approved course and the submission of a transcript.

Students who remain in the Manitoba program and attend universities elsewhere as visiting students do not have to worry about whether credits can be transferred from one university to another, or if they can meet the residence requirement for graduation when they are posted elsewhere — it is part of the Manitoba Program.

For those lucky enough to be transferred to CFB Lahr or Baden-Soellingen, the University of Manitoba offers on-base instruction at both locations during the regular session (October-April) and the summer inter-session (April-June). On-base courses in Europe are popular and normally 150 students attend classes there each year. Several candidates have completed their entire degree during their tour at Lahr or Baden.

The University of Manitoba Program employs a full-time coordinator who is available to assist students with any problems they may encounter. Major (ret'd) Michael J. Piercy has been the coordinator since the program began and provides potential students with application material, answer questions, offer guidance in the selection of study programs, provides information on degree requirements, transfer of credit, and certification for UTPM - UTPO, as well as help with difficulties that may arise in admissions and registrations.

Those wishing to contact Mr. Piercy may write to:

Room 519, University Centre,

Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Telephone: (204) 474-8005

Those contemplating enrolling in studies beginning in September, should note that July 2nd is the deadline for admission applications. For courses starting in January, the cut-off date is Nov. 2, 1986. Candidates who have attended another university should submit applications one month earlier and a transcript of marks should be ordered from the registrar's office to be mailed directly to the admissions office at the University of Manitoba.

Museum gets air force artifacts

Closure of the 402 Squadron Senior NCO's Air Reserve Mess at CFB Winnipeg has resulted in the moving of trophies and memorabilia to the Western Canada Aviation Museum in Winnipeg for public display.

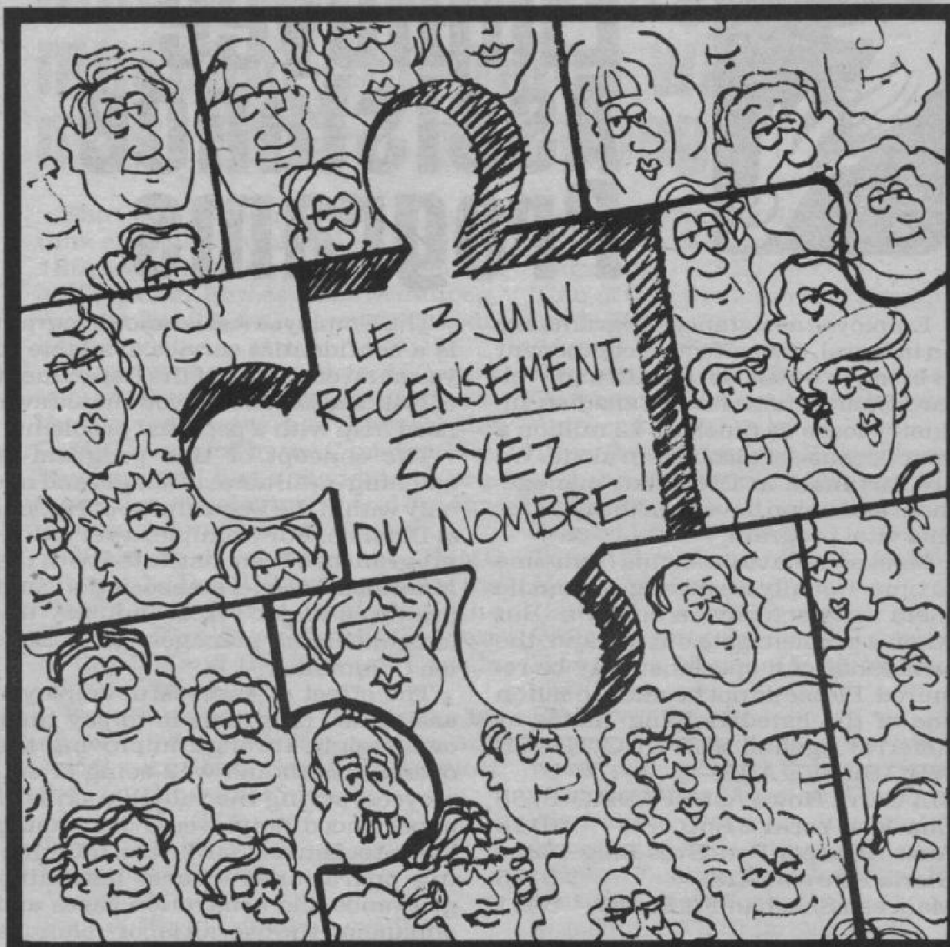

All Reserve Airforce messes in Winnipeg are being dismantled because of age and the expense of heating and maintenance. Members now will be accommodated at regular force messes on the base.

"We are happy to have our prized possessions made available to everyone," said Sergeant George Jones, PMC. "It helps underline the role of the City of Winnipeg Squadron within the entire community."

SQUADRON ARTIFACTS — Members of 402 Squadron present items of historical interest to the Winnipeg-based Western Canada Aviation Museum, situated in Hangar T-2 at the Winnipeg International Airport, near the corner of Ellice and Ferry Road. The items are from the Warrant Officers and Sergeants Mess of 402 Air Reserve Squadron. From left are Sgt. George Jones; Capt. Fred Woodward; Squadron Hon. Col. Neil Scott, who's also a WCAM director; WCAM president John Davidson; CWO Gary Wilson; Maj. Ron Bodnarek and MWO Denis Weber. Items presented include an oil painting of a Lancaster bomber and a wooden propeller of the 1940s era. The Squadron also is working with WCAM to establish a unit museum on the site, open to the public but maintained by Squadron members.

Why on earth should I change my Will?

Because things change. Not that your love or caring for your family has changed one bit, but circumstances change. In the light of these changes, it may be to your family's advantage for you to review and update your Will.

For instance, your children may have reached adulthood. There have been major changes in the law, recently. Your financial picture may have changed, and you could find some tax advantages. Any of these possibilities makes it worthwhile to review your Will. When you do, think of us. A simple sentence, "I give to the Canadian Cancer Society the sum of

"dollars" will help us continue the promising new research made possible by the Marathon of Hope.

The fight against cancer will take years of determined effort. Your caring could make the difference between fighting and winning.

Wife: In the first place, why did you get drunk?

Husband: I didn't get drunk in the first place. I got drunk in the last place.

Judge: What is the charge against this man?

Officer: Intoxication, your honor.

Prisoner: Judge, I was as sober as you are this minute.

Judge: Guilty, 10 days, next case.

Employee Assistance Programs

Employee assistance programs are an integral, cost-effective component of being in business. Health and Welfare Canada estimates Canadian industry loses as much as $3 million a year because of alcoholism alone. We are fortunate in DND that management and union have seen the need for this vital program.

Most of us have problems from time to time. Usually we manage to handle them satisfactorily on our own. But when a problem gets out of hand, the assistance of a specialist may be required. Please do not hesitate to call on one of the listed Helping Hands or Referral Agents. SERVING THOSE WHO SERVE ARE:

The Employee Assistance Program is a confidential service available to you as an employee of the Department of National Defence, if you should ever need help with a personal problem.

The concept of this program is catching on all across Canada and not only within the Department of National Defence. For example, a very alive program has been instituted with the Manitoba Teachers Association, and the three major forest industry unions, including management in British Columbia.

The effect of successful employee assistance programs is to pay their own freight through improving the overall health and well-being of employees, saving the valuable skills of experienced employees, decreasing absenteeism and tardiness, minimizing operational losses, lessening grievance and arbitration cases and enhancing the overall labor-relations climate.

Why settle for less?

Buying-selling homes on posting

Government personnel enjoy reimbursement of legal fees and disbursements, plus any Real Estate Brokerage fees, when they buy and/or sell on posting. This is such an incredibly valuable fringe benefit that renting should only be considered as a last no-option resort.

Here is the reason why. Your increased home ownership equity benefit after four move reimbursements from $65,000 properties can easily exceed $25,000 (That is the cash in your hand the reimbursements provide). This is a tremendous financial boost for those few, among the eligible many, who have been wise enough to seize these opportunities.

You lucky and wise government personnel get to pocket all of the sale price (less mortgage), on reimbursement. After more than 10 moves into and out of $65,000 properties, these same reimbursements could easily exceed $65,000. By the way, the expected property appreciation of each of those 10 houses enriches your family still further, and your retirement years will be that much more comfortable.

Selling your family home is a very important, and usually emotional, adventure for your family. True real estate professionals devote all of their energy, enthusiasm and, most important, all of their developed skills, to this most important task. You get the maximum of service and performance. This includes guiding you as to what you must do, in order to get that one maximum price from the only buyer able and willing to pay it and also take possession of the property on your terms.

A professional realtor also can serve you on postings when they personally refer you to a highly qualified and proven real estate professional in your new location, one who has the essential local market knowledge you will need to make the best investment for your family's future. You will benefit by receiving a total local-market overview well before you leave on your house hunting trip. You can be met at the airport or hotel, and receive professional service and performance with specific and accurate total-market exposure; all in a friendly, efficient, and relaxing manner.

Why would you ever want to settle for less. It's a no-charge service.

Hope your next posting is the one you really wanted.

Sturgeon Creek offers day-care workers course

If there is a service for which there is increasing demand, it is child care. There just does not seem to be enough nurseries, pre-school and school-aged day care centres. Neither are there enough people qualified to work in them.

The St. James-Assiniboia School Division No. 2 now is working on a program that will enable students who have successfully finished Grade 11 or 12, and who desire to work in the field of child care after graduating from high school, to make the transition into that occupation. Students will receive both classroom instruction and on-the-job training. Students who successfully complete the course should be able to work either as child care workers or continue their education at college or university.

Joan Dary, Coordinator of Special Education in the St. James-Assiniboia School Division, says that the planned Day Care Worker course will be of a very high quality. Its graduates have to meet the standards for Child Care Workers set out in legislation. Mrs. Dary feels that, for students whose ambition is to work in this field after graduation, this course will be both an opportunity and a challenge.

For more information about the Day Care Worker course, call: Joan Dary of the St. James-Assiniboia School Division at 888-7951, the Sturgeon Creek Regional Secondary School Guidance Department at 888-0684, or Paul Vouk of Manitoba Education at 945-6871.

Car Maintenance Tips

The Fuel System

by Canex Service Station Manager

The fuel system includes the fuel tank, fuel line, fuel pump, fuel filter and carburetor and literally goes from one end of the vehicle to the other. The fuel tank, which is usually located at the rear of the vehicle, holds a supply of fuel (usually gasoline), which is pumped to the carburetor to be prepared for the engine. Most vehicles today are designed to run on unleaded gasoline. Vehicles with diesel engines require special diesel fuel. Do not use gasoline in a diesel engine or diesel fuel in a gasoline engine.

A float inside the fuel tank measures the level of fuel and sends a signal to the fuel gauge on the instrument panel, so that the driver knows how much fuel is left in the tank.

THE FUEL PUMP: The fuel pump moves fuel from the tank to the carburetor, via a connecting tube. There is a filter on this tube or line, usually located close to or in the carburetor, to screen out dirt or rust particles. This filter should be replaced periodically. The fuel pump may be located in the engine compartment or in the fuel tank.

THE AIR CLEANER: The air cleaner filters the air going into the carburetor to remove harmful dust and dirt. It is usually positioned immediately above the carburetor. The actual filtration is done by a replaceable filter which is located under the cover of the air cleaner. It too should be replaced periodically, especially if you drive in dusty conditions.

THE CARBURATOR: The carburetor is one of the most important components of your vehicle, for it converts gasoline into a useable form and also provides the driver with a means of controlling the speed of the engine and the vehicle.

Clean air from the air cleaner is drawn through a narrow throat in the carburetor called the venturi. This air flow creates a partial vacuum which draws a fine spray of gasoline into the venturi, where it is mixed with the air. About 15 parts of air to each part of gasoline is the usual mixture. This mixture flows into the intake manifold, which is basically a pipe with branches running to each cylinder in the engine.

Engine speed is controlled by the throttle, which acts like a door between the carburetor and the intake manifold. When you step on the accelerator, connections to the throttle make it open wider and more fuel-air mixture is allowed to enter the intake manifold. When you take your foot off the accelerator, the throttle "door" closes, to reduce the flow of the fuel-air mixture and slow the engine.

The carburetor is set to mix fuel and air in a ratio of one part fuel to 15 parts air. Under some conditions, the engine needs a richer mixture, that is, more gasoline in the mix, and that adjustment is done by the choke.

The choke acts in much the same way as a throttle. It is located near the top of the carburetor and controls the flow of in-coming air. When the choke valve is partially closed, it shuts off part of the air flow and causes the fuel to flow more freely, creating the richer mixture. Today, vehicles have an automatic choke that is opened and closed by a thermostat, so you automatically get a richer mixture when the engine is started in cold weather.

When you accelerate to pull into fast-moving traffic or pass another vehicle, the engine needs a richer mixture to prevent hesitation and deliver a smooth surge of power. The accelerating pump provides this richer mixture. It is a small piston or diaphragm inside the carburetor. The piston causes a few extra drops of fuel to be sprayed into the carburetor as the accelerator is pressed down. That is why 'jack rabbit' starts increase fuel consumption dramatically. Not all vehicles have carburetors. All diesel engines and some high performance gasoline engines use a totally different system of distributing fuel and air to the cylinders. It is called fuel injection. Fuel is piped directly to the cylinder head or the manifold and injected into the combustion chamber.

It is a more sophisticated system and helps to deliver higher levels of performance from smaller displacement engines.

SIGN AND SIGNALS: When your gasoline mileage drops or when performance is sluggish, have your air cleaner and carburetor checked. The filter may be clogged and need to be replaced. If your car is older, the internal parts could be worn and need to be repaired.

If your engine fails to start after the first few turns of the starter, the engine may be 'flooded' and you will notice the smell of gasoline. Turn off the ignition and wait a few minutes, then try again. Usually the 'flooded' engine can be cleared by pressing AND HOLDING the Accelerator to the floor while the starter turns. See your cars individual owners manual for more details.

Keep your fuel tank full, especially during the winter months. A full tank will help to minimize the possibility of moisture condensing in the tank and eventually the fuel lines. It will also help to keep more weight in the rear end for better balance and control. In very cold weather, a little gasoline antifreeze added to your fuel is a good idea.

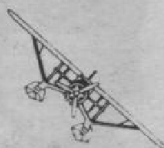

Read your owners manual. You will learn a great deal about your vehicle and how to get the most out of it. It will provide specific information about proper cold weather starting, clearing a 'flooded' engine, hot weather starting and the correct type of fuel to be used.

If your vehicle has a trip mileage indicator, use it every time you fill up. That way you will be able to keep track of your fuel consumption and have early warning of fuel system problems.

If you think you may have a fuel system problem, or any other kind of problem with your vehicle please give us a call at your CANEX SERVICE CENTRE. We will be happy to help you to getting the trouble corrected. Please call me at 5620.
